

JURY INDICTS HAUPTMANN

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

SPEAKING on "The Constitution and the New Deal" at Cincinnati, Ohio, Tuesday night Secretary Roper made it unmistakably plain that the Roosevelt administration will uphold American government in substantially its present constitutional form. The more vigorous recovery measures may or may not be constitutional, says the Secretary of Commerce—but it doesn't matter much, for they will last no longer than the emergency which demands them.

Johnson Resigns as Chief of NRA; Emergency Passing

Blue Eagle Administrator's Job No Longer Necessary

SPEECH BY CABINET Secretary Roper Assures Business Emergency Measures Temporary

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The long-expected resignation of Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson came late Tuesday and was accepted by President Roosevelt.

Word of the resignation was received in silence at NRA Tuesday night, with all available officials declining comment upon the actual taking of this expected step.

The resignation will become effective October 15. For the present the president has no other job for the recovery administrator who has served 15 months under the New Deal.

The resignation came in the form of a letter to the president and was accepted by Mr. Roosevelt in another letter which complimented Johnson on his hard work and assured the NRA chief of continued friendship.

Sought to Quit Before
It was made plain that Tuesday's resignation was far from the first time the NRA chief had tried to quit. Several times before Johnson had submitted informally and verbally to the president, his resignation. It was never before accepted. Tuesday the recovery administrator revealed his reasons in some measure for giving up his job, pointing to pressing private work.

Johnson called the president's attention to the fact that the NRA was being reorganized and under the scheduled set-up he felt the job was superfluous. He assured the chief executive that he would have his (Johnson's) continued friendship, and that should be called on again to serve the New Deal he would be ready to do so.

President Roosevelt in accepting Johnson's resignation said he felt the NRA had fulfilled its first phase of usefulness, and that the time had come to revise it. It was made plain that reorganization would come soon, perhaps within the next few days. It was indicated the president plans within a few days after he arrives in Washington tomorrow, to see Johnson and talk with him concerning the N. A.

"For Emergency Only"
CINCINNATI, Ohio.—(AP)—Seeking to reassure business spokesmen who had manifested "apprehension", Secretary Roper Tuesday night asserted the New Deal would safeguard individual initiative and that there need be no fear that all or most emergency recovery steps "may become permanent."

In what was generally accepted as a reply to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that the administration clarify its position, Roper declared there was no thought of

Lillian Gallaher Strangled, Police Declare at Probe

Girl, 11, Slain by Degenerate and Hidden in Apartment House

SEEK MAN, WOMAN

Crime Discovered by Janitor After Couple Leave Rooms

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—The body of Lillian Gallaher, missing since Thursday afternoon, was found Wednesday, on her 11th birthday, in an apartment only a few blocks from her home.

The body had been stuffed into a trunk.

The girl had been slain, but police did not disclose at once how she died.

Police immediately began a search for a man and woman who had occupied the apartment until a few days ago.

Later police said Lillian was apparently strangled to death and her body stuffed into the trunk—undoubtedly the victim of a degenerate.

The apartment house janitor, Clyde Burgess, called the police when he detected an odor from the apartment, caused by decomposition of the body.

A shrewd question.

In these sentiments, sir, I agree to this constitution with all its faults, if they are such, because I think a general government necessary for us, and there is no form of government but what may be a blessing to the people if well administered, and can only end in despotism, as all other forms have done before it. WHEN THE PEOPLE SHALL BECOME SO CORRUPTED AS TO NEED DESPOTIC GOVERNMENT, BEING INCAPABLE OF ANY OTHER.

Secretary Roper is reminding the American people, with the words of an immortal patriot, that there will never be an American despot so long as there are American citizens who are willing to resist despotism.

"The cry of 'dictatorship' these doubtful days fades before the memorable words of Ben Franklin and public confidence in this present-day cabinet officer who so aptly recalls them.

7 Kentuckians Are Indicted by U. S.

Prestonburg Mayor and Others Accused of Relief Fraud

PRESTONBURG, Ky.—(AP)—Seven persons, including a mayor, county judge, and a minister were indicted here Tuesday on charges of fraudulently converting $122,500 in the administration of federal relief money.

The defendants are A. C. Carter, mayor of Prestonburg, County Judge W. L. Stumbo, the Rev. W. M. Chapman, Mrs. Regina Mayo, Geo. Woods, Otto Fannin and Herbert Salisbury.

The indictment, returned Monday and filed Tuesday, charges "fraudulently misapplying, and converting legal tender relief orders equivalent to money, funds and effect."

The indictment charges the accused persons were entrusted with $435,000. Mayor Carter, it is alleged, deprived the poor of $25,000 by using relief orders to pay for work on his garage and in conducting his motor agency.

Judge Stumbo, a physician, is accused of using $20,000 to improve his private hospital and his farm.

Mrs. Mayo is accused of using $50,000 in relief orders to wreck her husband's coal mine.

Woods and Fannin were accused of using $10,000 each. Woods on his farm, Fannin in his business.

Salisbury is accused of conspiring with the others.

County Attorney O. C. Hall said other indictments will be returned. Hall said he will ask a jury from Pike county to try the case.

According to an expert, it will require at least five years before television is established commercially in this country.

America Captures Final Yacht Race

Sopwith Bitter as Rainbow Beats British Endeavor for Cup

NEW PORT, R. I.—(AP)—Britain's most gallant bid for the famed America's cup ended drably Tuesday night far from the open seas where Tom Sopwith's challenger, Endeavor, and the defender Rainbow fought so bravely through six races.

Sopwith, so bitter he said he never would challenge again for the battered old mug, withdrew his protest of Rainbow's victory—fourth straight for the defender after the Endeavor had won two races at the start of the series, equalling the best showing and invader ever made in 83-year history of the international trophy.

His withdrawal of the second charge of foul he has made in the series automatically removed the necessity for hearings the race committee had ordered Tuesday night after Harold S. Vanderbilt broke out the red flag of protest and Sopwith followed suit a few minutes after another sparring match at Tuesday's starting line.

Thus ended an international sporting incident that started here 10 days ago in beautiful weather, ran into one bump after another and reached its climax when the race committee refused even to head Sopwith's protest of the Rainbow's victory Saturday.

Since then all semblance of international amity has been lost, though the beautiful sloops kept up a brilliant duel in which Vanderbilt's superior handling just did edge out Sopwith's admittedly swifter Endeavor, handicapped by the said bungling of an amateur British crew.

The bottom fell entirely out Tuesday when Sopwith got the best start he has had over here, beating Vanderbilt over the line by almost a minute, but only after engaging in one of his touch and go jockeying matches of which both crews screamed "foul."

They never were close enough to get in trouble thereafter, but Vanderbilt made up a large deficit on the first leg of the 3-mile triangle with smarter sailing on the second leg.

As the final blow, Endeavor's big Annie Oakley got stuck half way up the luff of the start line, leaving Vanderbilt to sail the rest of the race.

The gallant Englishman made up all but 55 seconds of the deficit on the way home in a magnificent comeback, but the effort fell just short.

Camden Panthers 14 Pounds Heavier Than Local Team

Visitors Here Friday Night Are Hope's First Major Hurdle

TICKET PRICE CUT

Season Pastboard Now Only $3.52—Team Rally Thursday Night

With a banquet and pep meeting scheduled for Coach Foy Hammons and the Bobcats at New Capital Hotel Thursday night all eyes are focused on the first real hurdle that the local team has to clear this season—the game against Camden on the home field Friday night.

The Camden Panthers, despite their narrow victory over Nashville last week, have a weight average of 14 pounds per man over Hope, the Camden average being 174 pounds against 160 for Hope.

Camden professes to be worried over its showing against Nashville, coupled with Hope's 71-1 triumph over Hamburg—but "bear" stories out of Camden are being heavily discounted in Hope. Camden has always been Hope's most formidable opponent, and local fans consider that a victory Friday would put the Bobcats in the class of state championship contenders—despite the fact that Fordyce, El Dorado, Hot Springs and Little Rock are on the schedule.

Coinciding with plans for the Young Business Men's association rally at the New Capital hotel Thursday night, to which all citizens are invited at 40 cents a head, with the coach and the team as guests, it was announced Wednesday that season tickets had been reduced to $3.52.

For the eight remaining home games this means an average price of 44 cents per game—a considerable saving over individual admissions at the gate.

Camden Is Worried

CAMDEN, Ark.—Tackling and blocking will be stressed this week by Coach Sam Coleman in preparing the Panthers for their toughest assignment to date and one of the hardest games of the 1934 schedule. The locals go to Hope to play the Bobcats on their new field Friday night and Hope's smashing victory over Hamburg, 71-0, last week has made them favorites.

The Panthers failed to block and open up on the offense until the last few minutes of the game. On defense the team plenty of blocking practice this week. On defense the team looked weak at times with players tackling too high. Nashville plowed through the local line at will during the first half making five first downs on straight football. In the last half Camden stopped this attack with some degree of consistency. But the teamwork was crude in spots and the showing was not any too satisfactory for the coaches.

On Guard for Hope

Hope has a veteran team there this year, and in addition to Brown who starred here last year, and Turner, another veteran back, the Bobcats have Payne, Nashville high star, who is a speedster of renown. Foy Hammons, former Pine Bluff high coach, later with Ouachita and Monticello A. & M. College is coaching the Bobcats this year and his first game was an auspicious opening. He has a tricky eleven and the Panthers are due to see many off tackle smashes, coupled with end runs, passes, reverses and the like.

This week the locals face tough practice sessions and they will be buoyed by the fact that they have always been tough for Hope.

The probable starting lineup for Camden follows: Tackles, Cawthon, captain, (227), R. Smith (234); center, O'Neal (144); fullback, N. Cath-

Lindbergh Mystery Witness

Posing in happy mood with a friend, in this exclusive picture taken two years ago, is Isidor Fisch, right, dead for six months, around whom mystery centers in the Lindbergh kidnapping case. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, imprisoned suspect, claims Fisch gave him the $13,750 ransom found in Hauptmann's garage, when Fisch went to Germany, where he died last March. Henry Uhlig, left, a friend of both men, denies this, declaring that Fisch actually was in debt to Hauptmann and had little money.

Mills Uncertain as to Arbitration

Their Acceptance of Winant Inquiry Board Remains in Doubt

By the Associated Press
While shuttles in the cotton mills wove a return to normalcy Wednesday, strike leaders and mill operators spun divergent views on the re-employment of the strikers.

In Washington Francis J. Gorman, national leader in the recent strike, charged rang discrimination was being manifested against union workers.

George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said he could not say whether the mills would accept the Winant textile inquiry board report, or whether it would comply with President Roosevelt's request that all textile strikers be taken back without discrimination.

In the meantime, the former employees were streaming back to the mills, and demobilization of national guardsmen continued.

Colonel Lindbergh Testifies; More of Ransom Found

True Bill Names Hauptmann for Extortion of $50,000 Ransom

AVIATOR'S STORY

Hero Tells of Waiting While Money Passed Over Cemetery Wall

P-I Lead Lindbergh Col Lindbergh... NEW YORK.—(AP)—The Bronx county grand jury Wednesday indicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann on a charge of extortion as the alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

Earlier in the day police discovered additional money in Hauptmann's garage, which the German said was part of some money entrusted to him for safe-keeping.

Police said it totaled $840, and was part of the Lindbergh ransom.

Lindbergh Testifies
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the Bronx Wednesday to tell the grand jury how he waited while his emissary, "Jafsie", paid $50,000 over a cemetery wall on the kidnappers' promise to return his first-born.

The famous aviator spent 20 minutes testifying before the grand jury. As Lindbergh appeared before the jury, police announced some unidentified money had been found in Hauptmann's garage when officers searched the premises again Wednesday.

Bronx county jail attaches said the German was heard crying and sobbing in his cell during the night.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Flying in from the West, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were back Tuesday night to "aid the revived investigation" into the murder and kidnapping of their first child as authorities announced discovery of important new evidence against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused recipient of the ransom.

Colonel Lindbergh was to appear Wednesday before the grand jury concerning extortion charges against Hauptmann.

The Lindberghs stopped at the home of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police Tuesday night for dinner and a brief discussion of the case. Inquiries at the Schwarzkopf home brought the reply from the state police head that he did not expect to see Lindbergh again until Wednesday morning. After dinner the Lindberghs departed to the Englewood home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh.

Kidnaping Case Seen
Coinciding with their arrival, Gov. Harry A. Moore of New Jersey declared his state stood ready to try the suspect on charges of kidnapping and murder.

The flying couple landed at Trenton only a few hours after police had found, jolted down on a hidden closet panel in Hauptmann's Bronx home, the private telephone number and address of Dr. John E. Condon, the "Jafsie" intermediary who was paid $50,000 ransom. On another board, the same closet investigators found a series of figures which they said might be serial numbers of the ransom money.

The New York Times said a quantity of writing paper that matched the paper used in the Lindbergh kidnapping and ransom notes, also was found today in the home of Hauptmann.

District Attorney Numbers
Submitting the two panels to the grand jury, declared the prisoner had admitted authorship of the memoranda. He gave as his reason for making the pencilled notations, Foley said, an

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Headache May Result From Poor Eyesight

A famous British specialist in diseases of the eye found that 240 out of 1000 people who came to him for examination of the eyes complained of headaches. Of course, the first job that the specialist has to do under these circumstances is to find out whether there is any real relationship between the eyesights and the headaches.

Usually headaches due to eyesight is just behind the eyes. In rare cases it is in the back of the head—seldom it is on the side of the head or at the top. Such a headache usually comes on late in the afternoon or at the end of the day's work, although in some cases it appears early in the morning, due to overwork on the previous day.

There are early morning headaches that are due to last night's dissipation but the victim always knows the cause of this kind of a headache.

The onset of the headache is sometimes delayed because human beings can ignore slight pain. However, when you are tired or when your control is weakened by sleep, you become conscious of the pain. Sometimes you will feel such headache at the end of the week, when there is a sudden let-down from the drive of work.

A rather recent form of headache is known as motion picture headache, although this was more frequent in the early days of the movies than at present. The abolition of flicker on the screen, the reduction in the size of the screen and the modern type of illumination of motion picture houses have been helpful to the eyesight.

In the early days there was a sudden transition from light to complete darkness. There was also the possibility of sudden changes in illumination from looking at the screen to looking into complete darkness. With this came the sudden contraction and dilation of the pupil of the eye. This would result in fatigue of the eye and headache.

People who have defects of vision not satisfactorily corrected by eyeglasses, find that the use of the eyes tires them greatly. They get relief by stopping their work and looking off into the distance for some time, after which they find themselves able to focus their eyes on the work again.

Sometimes they find they get relief by keeping the eyes closer to the reading material or to the work. These cases indicate the necessity for the proper fitting of eyeglasses.

Some people get the habit of screwing their eyelids together, bringing tension on the muscles of the face and a pull on the muscles at the back of the head. This brings about pain in the back of the head.

It has long been understood that pains in the back of the head might occur with straining to see. This was accredited by many to the fact that the portion of the brain associated with sight is toward the back of the head.

Regardless of which of the explanations is correct, it is important for those who have headaches to make certain that everything possible be done to aid their vision.

Tells of Horrors in Women's Prison—
"Female Convict" Is an Inept, But Disturbing Book

By BRUCE CATTON

Chain gangs and Tammam-controlled ails are not, it seems, the only spots where the human race demonstrates its incapacity to act as its brother's keeper. There is also the prison for women, where sister gets just as raw a deal as brother ever got.

I gather this from reading "Female Convict," a sensational and disturbing book which was "ghosted" for some anonymous woman by Vincent Burns, brother of the Robert W. Burns who fled from a Georgia chain gang and co-authored, with him, of the famous "Look" describing that experience.

"Female Convict" tells what happened to a girl who was caught defrauding a department store and sent up for a seven-year stretch. It gives you the feminine counterpart of the kind of prison recently described by Dr. Louis Berg in "Revelations of a Prison Doctor," the kind of prison that Sinclair Lewis put, so unfortunately, into "Anna Vickers."

It is a miserable, disgusting tale—prisons run by stupid and dishonest persons who ought not to be entrusted

St. Louis Only One Game Behind Lead

Have Five Games to Play, While Giants Have But Three Left

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—The Cardinals, behind six-hit pitching by Dizzy Dean, defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 2, Tuesday and moved within one game of the National League-leading Giants, who lost to Philadelphia.

By winning their remaining five games, the Cardinals can tie the Giants, even if the world champions win the three contests remaining on their schedule.

Cardinal officials announced they would begin at once to receive applications for 1934 world series tickets, contingent on the club winning the championship. Prices for box seats are $5.00 for each game and for a strip of three $19.50. Reserved grandstand seats sell at $5.50 and for a strip $16.50.

The leader member of the pitching firm of Dizzy and Paul Dean was in fine form as he scored his twenty-eighth victory of the season. A three-run attack in the first inning off Larry French gave Dizzy an early lead and he held it and kept the Pirates scoreless until the ninth, when Paul Waner beat out a slow bouncer to Durocher and "Arky" Vaughan hit a home run to the roof of the right field pavilion.

The older member of the pitching firm was the important blows in the first inning. With one out, Rothrock was safe on Vaughan's wide throw and Frisch doubled to right center, sending Rothrock to third. Medwick's single to center scored Rothrock and moved Frisch to third. Collins' pop double over Suhr's head scored Frisch and sent Medwick to third. Medwick scored on Davis' long fly to Jensen. Collins moving to third, Fullis popped out to Vaughan to end the inning.

After Vaughan's ninth inning homer, the Pirates threw a scare into the crowd of 8,933 customers when Pete Traynor singled to center. Dizzy, however, struck out Suhr and Thevenow popped to Frisch.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Young Curtis Davis of the Phillies, one of the season's outstanding first year pitchers, dealt a blow to the Giant's hopes of remaining in front in the National League pennant race when he shut them out with four hits Tuesday, the Phils winning, 4 to 0.

The defeat reduced the Giant's lead to one game as the second place Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh, 3 to 2. In the losing column they were all even with 57 defeats each but the Giants had played two more games and won two more to gain their margin. As a result the New Yorkers were faced with the necessity of winning their three remaining games to tie for the title should the Cards sweep their five remaining contests or to win it outright if St. Louis should lose one. A single Giant defeat would almost eliminate the Terrymen unless St. Louis should be beaten twice.

man on duty when the flames were discovered, told the Department of Commerce investigation board Tuesday.

Furthermore, he continued, he was convinced the flames he saw first came from burning chemicals. They looked like such flames and he smelled odors which he variously described as like benzine or naphtha and burning rags.

In addition he told of an explosion "loud" and "intense" which followed shortly after the heat from the other fire-fighters to another deck.

"In the light of everything that happened," he stated, "I think that the ship was bombed."

Fender also corroborated the testimony of acting Captain William F. Warrms that Capt. Robert D. Willmott, who died of heart failure a few hours before the fire, suspected and feared George I. Alagna, the second radio operator.

He went even further and asserted it was suspected Alagna might have set a fire in the No. 5 hold of the liner. A blaze discovered and extinguished on August 27 on the voyage previous to the one that brought the fatal disaster.

Saying he once "sailed under glass" himself, meaning he once had been a ship's officer, Fender testified he was a personal friend of Captain Willmott. He gave evidence concerning the captain's suspicions of Alagna with reluctance.

REFUNDING IS NEAR

hope to have the job completed before the end of the year.

The State Highway Department is estimating the amounts due each district. Mr. Beasley said, and the department has reported to him that the work will be completed not later than December 1, and possibly 15 days earlier.

Assistant Attorney General Walter L. Fope has advised the refunding board not to issue any certificates until the highway department has determined the total amount due. Mr. Beasley said. The total amount must be ascertained before the blank refunding certificates can be printed.

Ten-year refunding certificates bearing 3 per cent interest will be issued to all districts holding state certificates of indebtedness. Mr. Beasley said. Representatives of several districts have reported that the original certificates have been lost. In these cases, Mr. Beasley said, the board will set aside the refunding certificates, but will not deliver them to the districts until an act is passed by the legislature authorizing the re-issuance of certificates which have been lost. There is no provision now under which a district may obtain a duplicate of an original certificate.

Several districts hold warrants and vouchers issued for interest and principal due. Warrants, vouchers and original certificates must be surrendered to the board, and refunding certificates will be issued for the entire amount. Mr. Beasley said. The board has no cash with which to redeem the warrants and no refunding certificates may be issued with warrants left outstanding.

In a letter to Governor Fittrell Tuesday, Mr. Beasley said that a total of $105,195,475 in bonds has been deposited for refunding, and that a total of $31,853,000 in state highway and toll bridge bonds actually has been refunded.

name on the ballot for the November election.

Judge Porter claimed the nomination under the existing primary law as he was unopposed in the primary held on September 11. He campaigned actively against Long politics and was opposed by the Long forces throughout the district.

Judge Porter's opponent, Justice Winston Overton, seeking re-election with the support of the Long organization, died two days before the election and the senator refused to recognize the Lake Charles jurist as the nominee.

The "Kingfish" 10 days ago deserted his anti-vice crusade in New Orleans and made a flying trip to Crowley, La., where he blocked a movement in the committee to declare Judge Porter the party nominee.

T. Arthur Edwards, chairman of the committee, was removed, the September 11 primary was declared null and void on the senator's claims that the people "didn't have a chance to express their choice" and another election was set for October 9.

Fournet was entered as the Long candidate by a handbill announcement and the senator for the past 10 days has been shouting the lieutenant governor's qualifications for the place from the stump.

Counsel for the secretary of state fought the issue sternly through four hours of argument at the court hearing and announced that an immediate appeal from Judge Jones' ruling would be taken to the supreme court.

Judge Jones declared that in his opinion the law was clear when it stated that a candidate should be declared the nominee if his opponent dies within seven days of an election. He said the law did not contemplate the holding of another primary under the existing conditions.

A V-8 is no longer the privilege of the Wealthy

Low First Cost
Low Upkeep Cost
High Resale Value

THE ONLY V-8
UNDER $2,500

It is not just chance that the Ford V-8 is the only V-8 selling today for less than $2,500. It is due entirely to the skill of Ford engineers.

For the V-type engine costs more to build. It is the type of engine that powers the most expensive cars. The type of engine that holds every world speed record. And only Ford has been able to put it in a low price car.

The advantages of a V-8 are apparent from the moment you drive it. Increased flexibility in traffic—faster pick-up—an ability to get places without driving strain.

The new Ford V-8 is not only low in first cost. It costs less to operate than any other Ford car ever built. Gasoline costs are lower. Oil costs are lower. Carbon removal and valve grinding are virtually eliminated.

See this new Ford V-8 at your nearest dealer's. Drive it. Then ask yourself why you should accept less today.

Let my road be the plain road,
The simple and the sane road,
The road where friendly men abide,
Dividing joys and woes,
I want to fare the main road,
The pleasure and the pain road,
The road that winds through all the cares.
Which everybody knows.
I would not take the high road,
The road that seems to run away
From other people's care.
I would not tread the blind road,
The selfish "never mind" road,
Which leads to cold forgetfulness
Of pain that others bear.
I want to walk the long road,
The "understanding wrong" road,
The road where flowers of pity bloom
And pump is seldom seen.
I want to walk the true road,
The common sense and do road,
Where men forgive the faults they find
And hearts are seldom mean. E.A.G.

Shower Springs

The Shower Springs Home Demonstration club held September 26 at the home of Mrs. Gifford Byers with 14 members and one visitor present.

The meeting was opened with reading of the 37th Psalm and prayer by Mrs. Byers.

After the report of the secretary and of the various committees, Mrs. H. C. Collier gave a report of the county meeting which was held in Washington and Miss Ruggles gave a splendid report of the state meeting held at Camp Pike.

As the secretary and reporter are leaving, Mrs. V. M. England was elected to fill their places.

After the business meeting a demonstration was given on floor wax and stain by Miss Griffin, which was followed with games and contests.

The regular meeting in October will be held on Tuesday October 16 at the home of Mrs. Early McWilliams.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

MABEL McELLIOTT

COPYRIGHT 1934 BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS LAMBURN, 18, elopes with RUSS LUND, aviator-instructor. When he goes to Florida, promising to send for her later, she goes to work in a department store.

Russ does not write. Months pass and then comes word that he has been killed in a motorboat accident.

Boots meets DENIS FENWAY, young author, and EDWARD VAN SILVER, wealthy and socially prominent. She is in love with Denis and jealous of beautiful KAY CHILLINGWORTH.

Boots gets a job in a book store and goes home to live in order to help her parents financially. On Christmas Eve Denis calls, but Boots tells herself she must forget him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

BOOTS awakened in the gray Christmas dawn, having slept badly, in snatches and tormented by dreams. Presently a half-hearted sun came through the clouds and she walked to church beside Miss Florida, along the frost-rimmed pavements. The well-worn family sedan had collapsed in line of duty some months before. The Lamburns walked now, whatever their destination.

It was really the first time since Boots' return that she had ventured out into the village community life. Several people nodded to her cordially. After the service Isabel whispered swiftly, "You're coming to my tea this afternoon, without fail."

"I don't know, I'm expecting a caller from town."

Isabel dimpled significantly. "Bring him along, I'm dying to meet him."

Boots' arm with its old warm pressure, "I've heard about your young man," she said with archness.

Boots said perhaps she would come. She didn't know, really, what Edward's plans would be. He was dining with the family and would drive out later. Edward was a solid, satisfying fact to have in one's life. He was all reliability and honest worth.

When he did arrive, smiling and big and hearty, with his resounding kiss and his own particular scent of Russian leather and heather-soaked tweeds, Boots mentioned Isabel's party. Edward was interested. Yes, he'd like to go, he said. Not for long, though, because he wanted to have his girl to himself. He had a lot of things to talk to her about. . . .

"These are too lovely," she told him, touching the pearls with a caressing finger. She had already thanked him for them. Edward's laugh boomed out reassuringly. She should have finer things than those and very soon, too, he assured her.

"Soon, Denis?" he asked after a moment. She steadied herself to reply.

"Yes. He dropped in last night."

"How's the old boy?"

"Oh, all right, I guess." Why must he remind her of Denis at this moment? But he was flushed with that topic, for the time, at least. It was for the time, he wished to speak. Could she be ready by January 7th? There was a ship sailing then—just the trip he had planned for her.

Boots laced her slim fingers, un-locked them. When she looked up, she was smiling. This was the best way out of her difficulties, surely. And the sooner it was done the better!

"All right. The seventh."

"You darling!" Edward was rarely demonstrative but today his voice trembled. He took her chin between thumb and forefinger, tilting it gently.

"You won't be sorry," he told her. "We'll go places and do things. I'll be so proud of you."

HER mother came in and there were effusive thanks for the game and the jellies and the fruit cake and the avocados. Boots, sitting apart, admired his manner with the older woman, his quiet deference.

"He's good. He's kind," she assured herself. "What more does any girl want?"

It would be a haven for her—this safe, wise, honorable marriage. Sylvia would never look past her unseeing again, nor would Boots' mother worry over him. The girl clung to these thoughts. They steadied her.

Presently she and Edward went for a walk in the chill air. The early morning promise of sun had faded and a slow fog was seeping in from the shore. The horns blew unceasingly.

"Funny Christmas weather!" Boots shivered in her coat, huddling the fur collar closer under her chin. She had an indefinable sense of unrest. Her nerves were stretched at high tension.

"You're cold," Edward gave her a concerned look. "Better take your back." He had one big, gloved hand under her elbow, piloting her. The sidewalks were lined with the faintly oily dampness the fog always brought. They stopped at an intersection and a car zoomed past them with eerie quiet in the gray swirl of mist blowing in from the Sound.

"This—is this terrible," the girl said on a note of hysterical laughter. "I never saw such fog. And on this, of all days."

People loomed suddenly close to them as they crossed. A father steered two red-capped and mitted children, chattering excitedly.

"Good thing we didn't drive," Edward muttered. "You can't even see the turns." A headlight flashed close to them and was instantly swallowed up in the mist.

PRESENTLY, Boots thought, chattering with relief, they would turn in at Isabel's doorway. All this darkness and dimness would be swallowed up in the warmth of candlelight and firelight. There would be reassuring laughter and brimming cups.

"I don't know why I mind this so," she said on a shaken note, "but I do. It makes me terribly nervous."

"Careful there!" She hadn't even seen the curb. Houses, shrubs, fences, gates—all were swallowed up in the horrible, all-enveloping grayness and blackness. She heard the shrill sound of brakes; saw Edward's arm lung up to shield her. It seemed then that she was slipping, slipping, slipping downward. . . .

When she came to she was on a dark couch in a brightly lighted room. There were murmuring voices somewhere nearby. A thin, alert man in spectacles came to stand over her.

"All right now?"

Boots' head ached but she could move her arms, her legs. She tried to struggle to her feet.

"Better take it easy. You're all right but you've had a nasty shock."

She said faintly, "Edward?"

"The young man's a bit knocked up," the doctor told her cheerfully. "We've taken him down to the hospital for X-rays. I'm Dr. La Farge and you're in my office in the Plantain Apartments. I'll have you taken home after a while when you're sure you've lost that fuzzy feeling."

She closed her eyes. For the moment she was too shaken to question him further. Just what "knocked up" might mean, uttered in that cheerful tone, she did not dare to ask. Doctors were notably optimistic when discussing such matters with another patient.

She lay back, spent. Edward was hurt and she herself badly shaken, although the doctor assured her there were no bones broken. Mr. Van Silver, he had added, shading his voice to the proper note of respect for that golden name, had thrown himself in front of Boots. His hip appeared to have sustained a slight fracture, although the car had not passed over him.

Boots shuddered. "My mother—no one has telephoned her, I hope?" she begged.

Mr. Van Silver had been conscious, she was told. He had insisted that Dr. La Farge take charge. Mr. Van Silver had said that Mrs. Lamburn was not to be alarmed and had instructed them to telephone a friend of his—a Mr. Fenway, said the doctor, glancing at a pencilled memorandum in his hand. Mr. Fenway would be here directly.

DENIS came in a moment later. The color came up in Boots' face.

"Where's Edward?"

"At the New Martha Hospital," she told him simply. "He—was very brave, Denis. He saved my life."

He was watching her intently. "He—Edward and I are going to be married soon after the first of the year," she went on rapidly. "I—I thought I ought to tell you."

There was a brief silence. "Thanks. I'm glad to know it. It—it simplifies things, somehow."

She did not glance his way nor ask him what he meant.

"So will you, after you take me home, go down to the hospital and see exactly how things are? See what he needs and then let his people know? His mother—his mother will be simply furious."

Boots finished, tears standing at last in her eyes. "She's not particularly wild about me anyhow, although she's been decent enough. But she will be bound to think it's all my fault."

"Of course I'll go," Denis said, answering the first part of her sentence and politely ignoring the second. "Think you can stand?"

She tried it, giddily. Dr. La Farge's mirror showed a blue bruise on her forehead. "I'm—a pretty sight for Christmas."

Much later, in her own room, with the lamps lighted and Miss Florida fussing over her gently with hot water bottles and milk toast, Boots recalled the look Denis had given her at that moment. He called it and put it quickly away. It was Edward she must think of now. A hip fracture, the X-rays showed. Edward was resting comfortably but it would be a full six weeks before he would walk again. (To Be Continued)

Roper only a month before broadcast to the nation's business leaders after consulting President Roosevelt, a message that the New Deal was wholeheartedly for preservation of the "profit motive." He did not specify Tuesday night what administration policies would be changed or how.

However, Roper's generalized statements were considered significant by Roosevelt's followers. It was emphasized that the Secretary of Commerce had given weeks of preparation to his address. It was assumed, too, that Mr. Roosevelt knew of its content.

"Let us make every effort," Roper said, "to safeguard local and individual initiative by weaning dependent agencies as soon as possible from the nursing bottle of federal aid after the emergency which brought the national government into co-operative relief endeavors have passed."

"One of the vital needs of this year is, therefore, to wean the dependent units from their federal dependence where it is possible for them to stand on their own feet."

"interest" in the Lindbergh kidnapping. "Where did you get that telephone number?" the prosecutor said he asked Hauptmann.

"From the newspapers," he quoted the stolid suspect as replying.

Foley said he told Hauptmann that Dr. Cendon's number never was published, and that in any event it had been changed two days before the ransom negotiations began. Hauptmann remained silent, he said. The prosecutor said Hauptmann told him he wrote the other figures in March 1932, and that they were some numbers on the bills I got from Isadore Fisch."

Hauptmann has contended the $12,750 found secreted in his garage had been entrusted to him by Fisch, who subsequently went to Germany and died.

Pal Disappears

KAMENZ, Germany.—(AP)—Apparently annoyed by recent revelations, one of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's early companions in wrongdoing—a man who turned over a new leaf and became a respected member of the community—has vanished without a word.

He is Fritz Paetzold who, back in 1915, was sentenced with Hauptmann to five years in jail for robbery.

Paetzold's boss, Richard Haneschel, the local blacksmith, said, "Paetzold hasn't shown up here for two days."

Henteschel blamed his employee's disappearance on German newspapers and their "unscrupulous and unfair revelation in the German newspapers of the criminal record of Hauptmann's previous offenses."

"I can't locate Paetzold anywhere," said Henteschel, "neither at his friends nor relatives."

Defective En Route

Arthur Johnson, New York detective who is coming here to investigate angles of the Lindbergh kidnapping, is a famous man in Kamenz long before his arrival.

"This will give us a rare chance to see a real American detective," many people said.

Dispatches from Madrid, said Johnson, there in connection with another case, planned to leave Tuesday morning for Kamenz.

American correspondents in this Saxony town, where Hauptmann was rearrested, have been deluged with requests by natives for American newspapers. "We would like to read what America thinks and writes about our home town," they said.
